Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 17-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Lazarus, et al.

Lazarus, et al. disclose a kit 10 comprising a first tray 10a of components and a second tray 10b of components. The first and second tray are individually assembled and packaged and are kept sterile until use.

Claims 17-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Partika, et al.

Partika, et al. disclose a kit comprising a first and second tray of components (see Figure 2) which are individually assembled and packaged and kept sterile until use.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

Art Unit: 3732

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-16, 20, and 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Folkman in view of Shanley, et al.; Macleod, et al.; Smith, et al.; Arlers; Racz; Jiang, et al.; Singer; Draenert; Haynie; Hertzman, et al.; and Baker.

Folkman discloses a tray for medical equipment. Folkman discloses the claimed invention except for the tray having local anesthesia, local anesthesia aspiration syringe, local anesthesia aspiration needle, injection needle, liquid monomer, monomer aspiration needle, monomer aspiration syringe, mixing bowl, mixing spatula, polymer powder, opacifier, scalpel, and needle. Shanley, et al. disclose that kits or tray can include a local anesthesia injection needle 6. Macleod, et al. disclose that kits or tray can include a local anesthesia compound. Smith, et al. disclose a aspiration syringe for fluids (see col. 9, lines 9-11). Arlers discloses another aspiration syringe. Racz discloses an aspiration needle for fluids. Jiang, et al. disclose that liquid monomers can be on a kit or tray. Singer discloses another aspiration needle. Draenert discloses a mixing bowl and polymeric powder. Haynie discloses that a tray or kit can have a mixing spatula. Hertzman, et al. disclose that a tray or kit can include a scalpel. Baker discloses that a tray or kit can include opacifier.

As shown above, the individual components of applicant's tray or kit are well known in the prior art and because the individual components are known in the prior art, it would have been obvious to one ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have any of these components available at the same time, e.g. as in a "kit", such as during surgery the surgeon can select the appropriately component for the particular procedure and patient.

Art Unit: 3732

In other words, the individual components of applicant's kit or tray are already available as prior art, merely combining the components under the rubric of a "kit" or "tray" does not result in a novel invention, even take as a whole. It is contemplated that the surgeon or any medical practitioner can meet applicant's claimed invention by simply purchasing the Shanley, et al., Macleod, et al., Smith, et al., Arlers, Racz, Jiang, et al., Singer, Draenert, Haynie, Hertzman, et al., and Baker components, and placing these components in proximity to each other or on a medical tray, e.g. Folkman's tray, so as to fall under the rubric of a kit.

Here, the novelty of the invention must reside in its whole, i.e. the kit or tray, being greater than the sum of its parts, since the parts or components of the invention are already known in the art.

With regard to claim 13, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to construct the combination of Folkman as modified by Shanley, et al., Macleod, et al., Smith, et al., Arlers, Racz, Jiang, et al., Singer, Draenert, Haynie, Hertzman, et al., and Baker with the polymeric powder being methylmethacrylate, since it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice. In re Leshin, 125 USPQ 416.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed on December 16, 2002 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

In response to applicant's argument that Lazarus and Partika does not disclose kit for use in performing vertebroplasty and that the second tray is utilized should the first tray of components is not sufficient, it is noted that the law of anticipation does not require that the reference "teach" what the subject patent teaches, but rather it is only necessary that the claims under attack "read on" something in the reference. Kalman v. Kimberly Clark Corp., 218 USPQ 781 (CCPA 1983). Furthermore, the manner in which a device is intended to be employed does not differentiate the claimed apparatus from prior art apparatus satisfying the claimed structural limitations. Ex parte Masham, 2 USPQ2d 1647 (1987).

In response to applicant's argument, with regard the 103 rejection of claims 1-16, 20, and 21, that non of the cited references are directed to performing a vertebroplasty medical procedure, it is noted the manner in which a device is intended to be employed does not differentiate the claimed apparatus from prior art apparatus satisfying the claimed structural limitations. Ex parte Masham, 2 USPQ2d 1647 (1987).

In response to applicant's argument that the Examiner's conclusion of obviousness is based upon improper hindsight reasoning, it must be recognized that any judgment on obviousness is in a sense necessarily a reconstruction based upon hindsight reasoning. But so long as it takes into account only knowledge which was within the level of ordinary skill at the time the claimed invention was made, and does not include knowledge gleaned only from the applicant's disclosure, such a reconstruction is proper. In re McLaughlin, 443 F.2d 1392; 170 USPQ 209 (CCPA 1971).

In response to applicant's argument that there is no motivation to form a kit as claimed, it is noted that the examiner has clearly stated a surgeon or any medical practitioner can meet applicant's claimed invention by simply purchasing the Shanley, et al., Macleod, et al., Smith, et al., Arlers, Racz, Jiang, et al., Singer, Draenert, Haynie, Hertzman, et al., and Baker components, and placing these components in proximity to each other or on a medical tray, e.g. Folkman's tray, so as to fall under the rubric of a kit. The purpose of doing this, as stated by the examiner, would be to have any of these components available at the same time, e.g. as in a "kit", such as during surgery the surgeon can select the appropriately component for the particular procedure and patient. Moreover, it is noted that the rationale to modify or combine the prior art does not have to be expressly stated in the prior art; the rationale to modify may be expressly or impliedly contained in the prior art or it may be reasoned from knowledge generally available to one of ordinary skill in the art, established scientific principles, or legal precedent established by prior case law. In re Fine, 837 F.2d 1071, 5 USPQ2d 1596 (Fed. Cir. 1988); In re Jones, 958 F.2d 347, 21 USPQ2d 1941 (Fed. Cir. 1992).

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.

Art Unit: 3732
